REPUBLICANS FIGHT LABOR EXEMPTION H. A. Wheeler Tells President of Noces

Senators Object to Provision in the Sundry Civil Bill Effecting Prosecution.

TAFT VETOED THE MEASURE

Republican Senators will make a figh on the Senate floor against the provisio in the sundry civil bill, agreed on a committee, providing that money appro-priated in the bill for the enforcement of the Sherman law shall not be em-ployed in prosecuting labor organiza-tions. In the Appropriations Committee of the Senate yesterday every Repub-lican member of the committee except Jones of Washington went on record by his vote against reporting the bill by his vote against reporting the bit with the proviso in it exempting the labor organizations. At the same time the Republican members gave notice of their intention to fight the provision on the floor. It will be remembered that President Taft vetoed the sundry civil bill at the close of the last Congress because of this proviso. It is understood that President Wilson was at first inclined to ask that it be omitted from the bill, but finally yielded to allow it to go in on the condition that it applied only to the appropriation for the next fiscal year and did not commit the Department of Justice commit the Department of Justice permanently to a policy of exempting labor organizations from obedience to the law, the same as other citizens. The Democrats in Congress are, by no means, united in support of the proviso, and there is likely to be some plain talk in the Scante on the subject. President Wilson, it is learned, realized that if he insisted on having the proviso struck out of the bill he would be inviting a flight with the labor organizations and their defenders in Congress at a time their defenders in Congress at a time when he is very much occupied with other controversies. It is with the dis-tinct understanding that the proviso car-ries a limitation only on the application of a current appropriation, and that it is temporary and does not announce of the government will take the matter up and

Mr. Wheeler declared the present currency system in this country to be of our financial institutions, of our financial institutions.

President Wilson openly declared himself in favor of a currency reform, and intimated that the question would be taken up as soon as the tariff question had been disposed of.

O'GORMAN GOES TO NEW YORK.

Senator Says He Will Never Con sent to Polk Appointment.

Privately intimating that he never would consent to the nomination of Frank L. Polk as collector of customs for the port of New York, and that he would carry the war, if necessary, into the Senate's executive session, Senato O'Gorman left yesterday for New York. The Senator denied that he returned home to take counsel with the politicians as to the course he should pursue. He said that he did not need to consult any one there to decide his course.

It was learned yesterday that the Sen ator told Secretary McAdoo would never give his consent to the non ination. He had never been consulted about Mr. Polk at any stage of the game. Senator O'Gorman stands on his prerogatives as a Senator. He told one of his friends in the Senate that he had lived in Manhattan all of his life, and believed he was competent to pick out a man for the collectorship.

The Senator said that his trip to New York was on purely private business. He will be back in Washington Monday for
